Good morning Nicola

Please see the email chain below with Simon. As you will see, he would like CRS to provide formal instructions for him to act. I can't yet do this without the signed terms of engagement and CFA. Are you able to send me the signed documents over the course of the next couple of days? I'm conscious we are aiming to write to Dentons this week.

Kind regards

Good morning Simon

Apologies for the late reply. I've just returned to the office following a week on holiday.

I'm still waiting for Nicola to sign and return this firm's terms of engagement and CFA. Until she does so, we cannot formally instruct you. As soon as I receive the signed paperwork, I will be in a position to provide instructions.

Hi Joe. Hope all is well. Just to confirm that my fees are £500 per hour with a 100% uplift on the CFA in this case. Please confirm. I will keep a log. Let's discuss when you have a moment. Regards. Simon

By way of a quick update, the letter is still being prepared. Simon has requested a number of amendments which Nick is now incorporating. Once complete, Nick will send me the draft plus the supporting papers so that the letter can be completed. I'm on leave next week so will look to send in the w/c 4 February 2019. Given the content of the letter and the accusations being made, it is, through necessity, taking longer to prepare than initially anticipated.

We're aiming to send the letter by the end of next week. I understand an advanced draft prepared by Nick is nearing completion. Once I have received the same, we will make any final amendments in conjunction with the client and Simon.

I wondered if there was a timescale yet for sending the letter to Dentons?

Andrew

Apologies for the slight delay in responding. We've now heard from Barclays that the redemption amount is c.£7.1m. We replied that we need to see a detailed breakdown to which Dentons have responded the Bank will consider matters further once we have provided a letter of claim. This is a frustrating response, although is to be expected given the quantum of the charge.

Along with Simon Farrell QC, we are instructed to prepare letter of claim detailing the factual and legal basis of the contention the charge has no validity. Whilst there are hurdles to the argument, the underlying facts are compelling and we anticipate Barclays will wish to discuss on a sensible basis once we set out, amongst other things, the circumstances leading to the loan and Ziad's activities.

I anticipate being in a position to send the letter of claim in January. Nick and Harry hold the relevant documents, of which there are many. These are being condensed and a factual summary prepared. Once completed, I will work with Simon to produce the letter of claim.
